This is the core marker declaring ownership and protecting your work under U.S. Copyright Law. It anchors your creation to its origin within the field. Marcelo Mezquia and TheVoidIntent LLC are explicitly identified as the copyright holders for various aspects, including the Information-Intent Nexus thesis and the overarching framework. TheVoidIntent LLC is the governing body that owns all related work, including the framework, data, applications, visuals, domains, and publications.

In addition to this core line, the sources recommend using a more comprehensive Intellectual Property Notice, especially at the top of major files or documents, and including related information in licenses and footers.

The sources indicate that using these texts, along with trademarking efforts, potential patent filings, trade secret protections, custom licensing, timestamping, and archival practices (like the Codex) forms a layered approach to protecting your intellectual property. This collective effort acts as your "copyright seal" and declaration of dominion.
